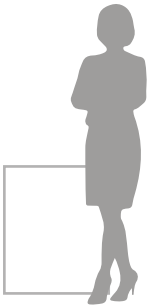
Can’t Take Me Home

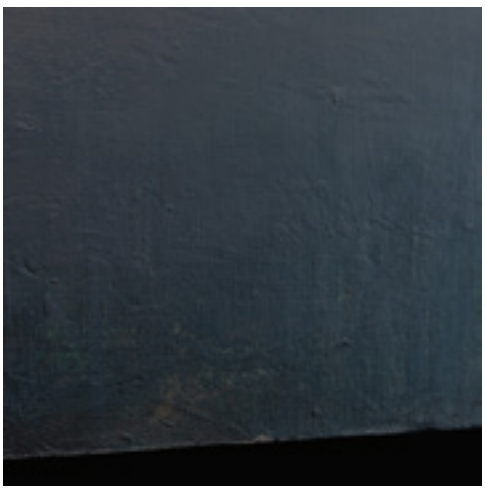
2025, acrylic on linen canvas, framed
Sides - raw linen,
60 x 73 cm / 24” x 28”

2 450 EUR



Ready to hang, signature on the back, brass plate on the side (”Łukasz Olek, www.lukaszolek.com”).
Without varnish. Comes with certificate of authenticity signed by author.
Price does not include shipping costs and potential taxes and customs in country of delivery.

Lukasz Oak
www.lukaszolek.com



Blinkered

Łukasz Olek: Synthesis of Reality, Memories, and Abstraction

The paintings of Łukasz Olek invite us to experience the world as seen through his eyes — a world in which each landscape is a personal study of memories, emotions, and the transient beauty of the surroundings.

Born in Warsaw in 1982, he has frequently exhibited his paintings in prestigious galleries worldwide. He is represented by galleries in Poland, the United States, France, Japan, Korea, and Australia, reflecting his growing international recognition. The artist also regularly participates in art fairs, including in London, New York, Amsterdam, Warsaw, and Paris. His works have found several hundred buyers from around the globe.

Olek's works are a synthesis of landscape fragments, reducing them to their elementary forms of color, light, and texture. His approach to painting is deeply personal, capturing not only the essence of the visual world but also the intimate feelings of the artist himself. His works are an introspective journey, vivid memories stretched across the canvas, and each title is a tribute to the music that accompanied him during the creative process. This synesthetic interaction of color, sound, and memory gives his works an extraordinary sensuality and immediacy.

A consistent, ongoing exploration of the fragmentary landscape invites us into a world where each painting is a universe itself.

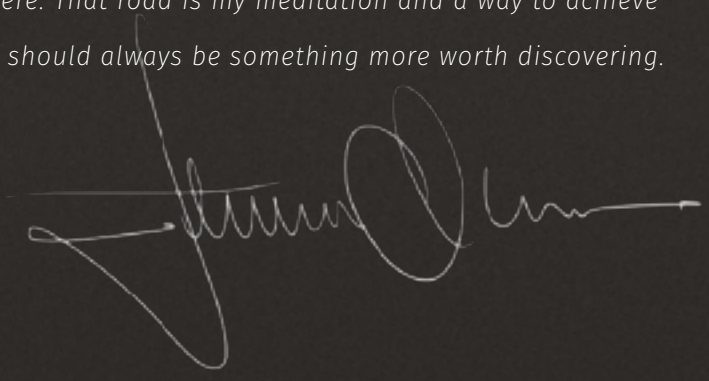
Artist Statement

Do you like getting lost on purpose? I love it. I always prefer local roads to the highway, and they usually lead me to the most interesting places.

Usually, the landscapes I paint come to life as a result of me getting literally lost. There, at the very end of the map, in peace and solitude, I can reflect on the surrounding world. And then, back at the studio, I look for ways to transfer my impressions onto the canvas. It is always my paramount goal: to imbue the painting with the emotions, forms, colours or, sometimes, even the after-images that place had left within me.

When creating, I like to get lost in various ways, looking for and testing new media, forms and techniques. Sometimes, from that momentary chaos, things emerge which stand in opposition to the calming landscapes which have inspired me. Surreal demons appear that dwell in most of us, under the skin or deeper within.

I see art as a road that takes me somewhere. That road is my meditation and a way to achieve peace. I hope it never ends because there should always be something more worth discovering.



My works are available at:

FIJEWSKI GALLERY

Artmajeur SAATCHI ART Artspace on*arte artnet

STALOWA GOLDENMARK AGRAART Station of Art Gallery SINGULART

the Arthing KYO GALLERY TRICERR ART.SY

For the latest news,
follow me on Instagram

ART.TSR

www.lukaszolek.com | hi@lukaszolek.com | +48 510 530 630

IG: @art.tsr | FB: @TsrArt